

The world is ending, at least as everyone knows it. With the Resonance Virus running rampant among the population and having developed an immunity to earlier cures, an assortment of the elite and those who happened to be near them at the time have been herded into bunkers across the nation. At one such bunker, scientists who were involved in the Resonance Project have been working around the clock on a new cure. As the hospital ward in the underground bunker is sealed, all anyone can pray for is that they will be among those who survive this apocalypse.

Why are you here?

Given, you'd rather be here in the quarantine bunker than out there with the infected hordes. But why you and not the director of NCIS? Why no other NCIS agents?

The only thing you can think of is that your involvement in Resonance - taking care of that Congresscritter in Philly - might have gotten you onto the "need to know" list. And perhaps the government realizes that in this sort of extreme disaster scenario, having someone on their side with your particular skills might be useful.

Or... perhaps this is a setup. You know too much, so they're trying to get rid of you. Lure you here to this bunker, then get you off in a corner so some military goons can beat you into submission.

Which is it? Neither, maybe. Watch your back, Pelletier.
