

The world is ending, at least as everyone knows it. With the Resonance Virus running rampant among the population and having developed an immunity to earlier cures, an assortment of the elite and those who happened to be near them at the time have been herded into bunkers across the nation. At one such bunker, scientists who were involved in the Resonance Project have been working around the clock on a new cure. As the hospital ward in the underground bunker is sealed, all anyone can pray for is that they will be among those who survive this apocalypse.

You are furious, simply furious. Anyone with a lick of sense knows that when you play with fire, you get burned. And you're now surrounded by the people who set off the biggest conflagration the world has ever seen. The fact that they are the ones who are going to survive it, while so many millions more are dying... well, it just doesn't feel like justice to you. Not one bit. It would be better if they were locked outside while decent folks without a bit of guilt in this mass-murder were the ones in here being saved.

There is going to have to be an accounting, after this is all over. Those responsible for unleashing a new Holocaust on the world will not be allowed to run what is left in the aftermath. Now, with only a short time left before you all get dosed with the cure, you've got to puzzle out who else amongst those present has an ounce of decency. Once this is all over, the lot of you are going to have to make plans. Plans for both holding those who perpetrated this crime accountable, and for trying to salvage whatever is left of the world.

And if President Carroll says a damn thing against it, you don't know if you can hold off popping that asshole one right in the face.